THE LOTTERY CASES UP.

Supreme Court Reviewing the Findings of Lower Tribunals.

Hearing was begun yesterday afternoon in the United States Supreme Court in what are known as the lottery cases, which have been continued for several days.

The cases are the result of the proceedings in the trial court the defendants were convicted.

In the Cincinnati case the petitioners are John Francis, Anthony Hoff, and John Edgar, who were convicted for bringing lottery tickets across the State from Kentucky. Their case was appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals, which sustained the decision of the lower court.

The matter comes before the Supreme Court in the form of a petition for a writ of certiorari requiring the Circuit Court to certify to the Supreme Court its review and determination in the case.

In the Chicago case a man by the name of Champion was indicted and convicted of being a purveyor of the House of Representatives. His case also has been appealed and it has reached the Supreme Court. Argument in the case will probably consume some time.

A RECEIVER ASKED FOR.

Distribution of Alleged Balance on a Contract Asked.

Proceedings were instituted in equity yesterday by John S. Burdette against Samuel C. Scott and James T. Lovelace, trading as Scott & Lovelace, and nine others, named as defendants, asking for the appointment of a receiver, to take charge of and distribute $1,000 now in the United States Treasury, and payable to Scott & Lovelace under a certain contract.

It is explained that Scott & Lovelace entered into a contract with the United States Government to erect an addition to the hospital at the Washington barracks, and that Burdette was one of the contractors on the bond of the contractors. The contract for the building of the addition to the hospital was not completed and Burdette stated that he believed the balance, $1,000, remaining in the Treasury to the credit of Scott & Lovelace, should be used to pay those creditors of the contractors who have not been paid for the part of the work done by them, and to reduce the liability of the surety, Wharton E. Lester is named as counsel for the petitioner.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

The Marriage of Miss Foulke and Mr. Smith to Occur Today.

Yesterday Marked by Weddings That Took Place at Church and at Home—The Russian Ambassador Soon to Return to Washington.

The marriage of Miss Gladys Foulke and Mr. William Chapman Smith will take place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. In deference to the recognized custom of refraining from all formal entertaining during a period of official mourning for a President of the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Foulke have changed their original plan for a brilliant wedding for their handsome young daughter. Instead of being an elaborate church ceremony at St. John's it will be performed in the tapestry gallery of the family residence on Massachusetts Avenue. Rev. John Cornell, who was pastor of the Episcopal Church at Nice, France, throughout the five years' residence there of Mr. Foulke and his family, and who is now in Washington on his annual winter visit, will officiate at the ceremony. The bride, the widow mother of Mr. Foulke, and his sister, Miss Eleanor Foulke, of Philadelphia, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foulke.

Christ Church, Georgetown, was the setting for one of last night's pretty weddings. The bride and groom being Miss Mary Virginia Adler and Mr. Sydney Percy Thompson, who were married in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The vested chorists from St. Paul's Church met the bridal party at the church door and preceded them to the altar, singing the hymn "The Church's One Foundation." The wedding procession was led by the ushers—Mr. Harry Whiting, Mr. Harry Harvey of Baltimore, Mr. Richard Dubay of Norfolk, Mr. Orelia Baker, Mr. John Edwards, and Dr. Robert Beale. The bridesmaids, who followed in couples, were Miss Gertrude Adler, the pretty young sister of the bride; Miss Sallie Kirkland, of Chicago, who is hopelessly in love with Julia Smoot, and Miss Sadie Britton. They were gowned alike in elaborately tucked white mousseline de sole over white silk, with ruffles of white chiffon defining the low bodice and the long sleeves, and adorned with rich white satin. Their flowers were yellow and white streamers and white ribbon. The maid of honor was Miss Sophia Stuart, the daughter of the pastor of Christ Church. Her gown, which was entirely of white, was formed of mousseline de sole over silk, with a graceful and delicate waistline color draping the low waist. She carried a cluster of bride roses, tied with satin ribbon in a bow at the top.

The bride passed up the aisle with her father, Mr. Maurice Adler, who gave her in marriage. She was followed by a train of white-embroidered chiffon over liberty silk, the high bodice trimmed with applique lace and ruffles. Her mother's gift, a sunburst of diamonds and pearls, caught the faces of her guests as she passed. The groom, who was dressed in a tuxedo, followed the bride, and the wedding party entered the church from the vestry, and after the arrival of the party at the altar, the ceremony was performed by Dr. Albert R. Stuart, rector of Christ Church. The chorists singing "The Church's One Foundation." The decorations of the church added to the beauty of the occasion. The floral color being expressed in bride roses and palms, which was embowered in white blossoms and palms. The first and second purports and drinking were thrown in suite, the latter room being separated by broad white satin ribbon tied to tall white and gold chairs, filled with champagne and flowers. Among the out-of-town relatives were the groom's sister, Miss Gertrude Adler, of Chicago, and her husband, Mr. Harry Whiting, of Baltimore. Mr. and Mrs. Adler and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Thompson, who were married in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The wedding trip will include visits to Buffalo and points of interest in Canada, after which the bride and groom will return to their home in Washington.

The marriage of Mr. Elmer Mayberry and Miss Cora Pumphrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Enos Pumphrey, of Meadwood, Md., took place last night at Hamilton Hall, 10th and 11th Streets, N. W. The bride was Miss Cora Pumphrey, of Meadwood, Md., and the groom was Mr. Elmer Mayberry, of Washington. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Cornell, who was pastor of the Episcopal Church at Nice, France, throughout the five years' residence there of Mr. Foulke and his family, and who is now in Washington on his annual winter visit, will officiate at the ceremony.
